INTRODUCTION

ANY, many years we have written the introduction of our catalog to our numerous friends and clients from the lowlands of Holland. For more than twenty years we issued our catalogs and Special Offers to the United States and have done so not in vain. Thousands of Gladioli were shipped by us across the Atlantic to both amateur and grower, giving mutual satisfaction. Indeed, we took great pleasure in trading with the people of the United States.

Long ago, however, we felt the desire to immigrate with our valuable stock to this great country, knowing that then we should be in closer touch generally and consequently give more efficient service to our esteemed customers.

Again and again we attempted to break our way through countless obstacles. The years came and went, not bringing the fulfillment of our fervent wish. Today, however, we take great pleasure to greet our customers on American soil. The early spring of 1919 we arrived in Michigan. Temporarily we associated ourselves with the United Bulb Co. In connection with them our stock was planted, three miles north of Mt. Clemens, Mich. Our flowers were exhibited at the Florists' Convention and the Michigan State Fair, held in Detroit, Mich. The Vos-named varieties drew special attention and were awarded the highest prizes. For particulars read the October number of "The Flower Grower."

Several years ago our Mr. P. Vos began the great work of Hybridizing Gladioli. The results, today, are far beyond his highest expectations. New colors and forms have appeared, the one surpassing the other in loveliness and beauty. It is worth while to note the star-marked varieties and to try the same. They are all the results of painstaking labor in crossing and hybridizing.

Never do we grow tired in nursing our flowers. In early summer we long for the unfolding of thousands of buds. Day after day they seem to spring from a sea of deep green foliage, reaching as high as five feet from the ground. A field of Gladiolus flowers, unfolded, at the acme of blossoming, fascinates the eye.

Are you too, a lover of art and beauty? Then come to our farms during the months of July, August and September. You will see a wonderful collection of flowers. Hundreds of shades intermingled, the one color shading and losing itself into the other, the whole field producing one great aspect of Flora's children, attractive and full of charm!

Surely, you feel the desire to see your own garden adorned with such richness. You want to nurse Gladioli yourself and taste the satisfaction that awaits everyone who grows these flowers. We are at your service. Go through our catalog carefully, take notice of the color descriptions and select your own varieties. We are positive to give you the satisfaction you are longing for. Our motto is: "More beauty in American gardens."

Respectfully yours,

P. VOS & SON.

Gladiolus Primulinus Hybrids—With this new class we can offer something extremely good. Being derived from the small blossoming pure primrose yellow original kind crossed with the large-blossoming roses of strong growth these Primulinus Hybrids form a valuable supplement to the varieties of Gladioli. The richness of color of the previous classes of Gladioli is greatly increased by these new hybrids.

Up till now it was principally the golden orange shades, which were missing to complete the scale between white and red; just these delicate colors of light and dark orange-red and salmon pink are uppermost in this class. These new hybrids besides in their delicate coloring excel also in the elegant position of the flowers and in their thin yet extremely tough stem. These qualities make the Gladiolus Primulinus Hybrids choice flowers for cutting, they being most suitable for the decoration of baskets and filling of smallish vases. Per dozen 80c; 100, $6.00.

* The varieties thus marked are acquired by hybridization. Since 1911 we have paid special attention to the crossing of our varieties. Our Mr. P. Vos has had a success with them beyond his highest expectations. These hybrids are in form and color unsurpassed and considered a great addition in the world of Glads, both at home and abroad. The flowers exhibited at the convention in Detroit and also at the Michigan State Fair drew the greatest admiration of both professionals and amateurs. Do not fail to try these extremely fine novelties. They are bound to satisfy your taste of beauty.
